What are Dichos and Refranes?

Dichos and refranes are short, witty sayings that are passed down from generation to generation. They often contain a moral lesson or a piece of wisdom, and they are a great way to learn about the culture and history of a language.

In Spanish, dichos and refranes are used in everyday conversation. They can be used to make a point, to tell a joke, or to simply express oneself. By learning these sayings, you'll be able to sound more like a native speaker and connect with Spanish speakers on a deeper level.

What's Inside My Spanish Sucks?

My Spanish Sucks is packed with 101 essential Mexican dichos and refranes. Each saying is explained in detail, with examples of how to use it in everyday conversation. You'll also find a pronunciation guide and a glossary of terms to help you get started.

Here are just a few of the dichos and refranes you'll find in the book:

* A palabras necias, oídos sordos. (To foolish words, deaf ears.) * Al que madruga, Dios le ayuda. (The early bird gets the worm.) * Cada quien habla de la feria según le va en ella. (Everyone speaks of the fair according to how it goes for them.) * El que no arriesga, no gana. (Nothing ventured, nothing gained.) * Más vale pájaro en mano que ciento volando. (A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.)
