- Part One: The Challenges We Face
- Part Two: The Opportunities We Have

▪ Part Three: The Way Forward

In Part One, the authors identify the key challenges facing our world today. These challenges include:

- The rise of populism
- The impact of technology on our lives
- The growing gap between rich and poor
- The threat of climate change

In Part Two, the authors explore the opportunities that we have to address these challenges. They argue that we have the knowledge and the resources to create a better future for ourselves and for our children. However, they also caution that we need to act now to seize these opportunities.

In Part Three, the authors offer a roadmap for the way forward. They call for a new kind of politics, one that is based on cooperation and collaboration. They also call for a new kind of economics, one that is focused on sustainability and social justice. And they call for a new kind of culture, one that is based on empathy and understanding.
